Note from the Pastor

From the Archives

"When you give alms (works of mercy) do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing and your Father who sees in secret, He will repay you."

In this season of serious alms giving and works of mercy, I reprint a note written in 1996. Jesus always comes back to repay you.

It doesn't happen very often and so I have learned never to expect it when it does happen, it is oh, so sweet!

Despite the so-called rosy economic look, there are a lot of people in financial trouble. I daresay we have had more people at the door in the last two months than all of the rest of the year combined. And I must confess that after a while I get a little wary. The hardest thing to discern is when you are genuinely helping people or when you are playing the co-dependent and simply enslaving them in their habits of self-destruction. It is a judgment call almost impossible to make.

A holy man once told me that whether you give something or not is not as critical as paying attention to the person in front of you, to look into their eyes and to give them the time of day (sometimes it's easier and faster to just stuff cash in their hands and dismiss them). About three years ago, there were two young Mexican men not at my door but sitting in my backyard. They were accompanied by a state trooper. They looked a wreck. I would later learn that they hadn't slept in two days, eaten in three nor changed their clothes in a week. The officer told me of their plight. They were caught by a trucker on I-57 who found them hiding inside the wind cowl of his semi-tractor. They had evidently hid in there at the rest stop near Peotone. Can you imagine traveling sixty miles an hour down the interstate holding on for dear life and not knowing where you're going? Well, lucky me, they ended up in my backyard.

"Cuál es tu nombre? What is your name? "Jesus" (that's pronounced heysoos). And to the other I asked the same question, "Jesus, también." Oh, great, I thought, just what I need, two Jesus's in my backyard. I thanked the officer for bringing them to me and told him I would take care of them.

I looked into their eyes. Hidden under the grime and the hardness of their life. I saw two young boys, vulnerable and scared out of their wits. I asked them what I could do for them and they couldn't even respond. I brought them into the house, found a change of clothes for them and pointed to the shower. A half hour later they emerged looking (and smelling) much better. Luis took them to an all-you-can-eat buffet and, believe me, the restaurant made no money on them that day. By now, they were more relaxed and told me that what they truly wanted to do was to get back to Atlanta where at least they had some friends and the possibility of work. A bus for Atlanta didn't leave until the next morning and so, after discussing it with Luis and his brother, José, who was living with us at the time, we invited them to stay the night. I unfolded the hide-a-bed in the downstairs living area and quietly instructed Luis to lock his room. My room and José's don't have locks on them, so Luis with a smile suggested that we just hide the kitchen knives. Very funny, I thought, but didn't smile.

Very early the next morning Luis drove them to the bus station, bought them tickets to Georgia (one of our parishioners three days before put some money in my hand and said, "Here, use this for the poor."), gave them $20 of his own money for food and bade them farewell. And that was that. Until last Friday. I had just come back from Mass and was on my way out to the hospital when the front doorbell rang. It was a young Hispanic man and I asked him with an audible sigh in Spanish if I could help him. He responded in English. "Do you know who I am?" I had violated my own rule and did not want to look in his eyes but did so. He seemed familiar but being poor not only at names but also faces, I couldn't place him. "I'm Jesus" he said. "Sure" I thought, "they are all Jesus." "Don't you remember? Three years ago you took me in and sent me and my friend back to Atlanta." It was him alright, Jesus #1. He told me that he couldn't remember the name of the church or my name but remembered that he was in the city of Kankakee. And so he took a bus from Louisville where he is now living to Chicago down to Kankakee and started walking from Catholic church to Catholic church until he found us. St. Teresa was the fourth church he visited. "All I ask from you, Father, is un sobre (an envelope). I gave him an envelope, invited him in, asked him if he was hungry (silly question) and we shared breakfast together. I told him it was neat to see him and asked him what he was doing in the area. He told me he had some business and would be returning to Louisville the next day. I offered to take him to the bus depot and drop him off on my way to the hospital. "That would be just fine." As he was leaving the car he handed me the envelope and said, "Sometime I will see you again." "I hope so", I said and gave him my name and address. "By the way, what's your name?" "Jesus Estrada" he replied. As he left the car I shouted out, "Que le vaya con los angeles." And that was that. Well, not quite.

While I was on my way to the hospital, it hit me. Sometimes I'm a really slow learner. Jesus made the trip from Louisville, Kentucky to Chicago to Kankakee and back again simply to find me and thank me. It wasn't an afterthought or a side trip. I was the reason for the trip. Talk about dense. I just didn't get it. I then opened the envelope and inside was a new $50 bill, a new $20 bill and the oldest $100 bill I have ever seen in my life. It looked like it went through the Civil War. I was touched and humbled at the same time.

The Bible is pretty explicit. When you give money, give it with the idea that you will not be repaid, and your Father in heaven will do the repaying. Through the years whenever people "borrow" money, it is a given that I probably will never see it again. So when something like this happens, I am completely blown out of the water. I have been looking at the old $100 bill now for a week and have decided to frame it along with this Note from the Pastor. One of these days, Jesus Estrada is going to cross my path again and this time I will have a present for him.

In Jesus, the Eternal Gift Giver,

A LENTEN EXERCISE APRIL 11 AT 6:00 P.M. IN BARRETT HALL

The ministry of Peace and Justice is offering a Lenten Experience for all of our Mary Queen families. We invite everyone to join together on Friday, April 11 in Barrett Hall to share a simple pot luck supper of meatless soup, salad and bread. Dinner begins at 6:00 p.m. We will then move into church to pray the Stations of the Cross and go back to Barrett Hall afterwards to share a light desert and review a section of the movie A Place at the Table. This deals with the topic of hunger in America and programs that assist the hungry. A short discussion will follow and we will write letters to our legislators in support of increasing funding to some of these programs. Examples of letters will be available. This is a great way for children to learn social responsibility.

There will be a sign-up sheet in the back of church to register your family and what you can bring. Hope to see you there.

Tickets are limited to a maximum of 40 and going fast, so don't delay. You can Reserve your space by contacting Jim Japczyk at jjapczyk@gmail.com.
